Sarah E. Owsowitz's practice focuses on California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) advice and litigation, with a particular concentration on regional county and city-level planning documents, large-scale commercial, industrial and residential developments, water projects, as well as those projects with significant cultural resource issues. Sarah represents both public and private clients in administrative proceedings and litigation involving CEQA, as well as state and local planning and zoning laws. She is of counsel in Best Best & Krieger LLP's Environmental Law & Natural Resources practice group.

She is the author of multiple CEQA and land use-related articles and lectures regularly on topics that include current trends in CEQA case law, statutes and guidelines, tribal cultural resources, CEQA and vehicular miles traveled, administrative records, and the preparation and defense of water supply analyses in CEQA documents.

Sarah serves on the Association of Environmental Professionals Statewide Legislative Committee advising on CEQA legislation, and the California Special District Association's Legal Advisory Working Group. She is a recipient of the Daily Journal's Environmental California Lawyer Attorney of the Year Award in 2017. Northern California Super Lawyers Magazine selected her as a "Northern California Super Lawyer" for Land Use Law in 2013–2023. She has also been consistently recognized by
