Clark Snyder is the chief information officer with Best Best & Krieger LLP (BBK). As CIO, he is responsible for guiding BBK's enterprise technology strategy, systems engineering projects, security initiatives and for the management and development of technical staff.

Clark has over 30 years of experience in all aspects of law firm technology. He joined BBK from an Orange County law firm, where he started as an information systems specialist after graduating from college. In this role, he gained considerable experience selecting, implementing, and managing enterprise-wide platforms and policies as a senior systems manager and enterprise infrastructure manager. He was later promoted to director of technology, chief technology officer and director of core infrastructure and technology. In this capacity, Clark collaborated with the firm's technology committee and executive leadership on all technology and operations decisions for the firm, scaling all infrastructure and continually optimizing their systems and security.

He is a member of BBK's senior leadership team and reports to the chief operating officer.

Clark is an Arizona Wildcat and English Premier League soccer fan and enjoys traveling to Europe.
