Michael Maurer is a partner in the Municipal Law practice group at Best Best & Krieger LLP. In addition to advising public agencies on the legalities of their day-to-day operations, Mike provides exceptional guidance in the areas of ethics, development and construction, and complex transactions.

Municipal Law and Public Integrity

Mike serves as city attorney for the City of Arcadia and as general counsel to the Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG), which is the municipal planning organization for six counties in the Sacramento region. He also serves as general counsel to the Institute for Local Government, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit dedicated to promoting good government at the local level. Mike has previously led BBK's Open Government & Ethics subgroup, providing advice and training to local government leaders throughout the state on issues of governance, ethics and transparency.

Governmental Transactions

Mike advises a wide variety of local government agencies to creatively plan for, negotiate and implement projects that improve communities and expand local government services. He often works at the intersection of the public and private sectors, including through the use of public-private partnerships, to help local leaders navigate challenges in improving transportation, health care services, and housing. For example, he has negotiated funding agreements for supportive and transitional housing projects, implementation agreements for large-scale economic development projects, and agreements to install and utilize alternative energy systems, as well as joint powers agreements among public entities. Mike regularly assists local government agencies in procuring good and services, including for innovative technologies. As needed, he has also successfully defended challenges to public agency procurements, including procurements of contracts in the tens of millions of dollars.

Public Infrastructure and Construction

Mike guides clients through the process of constructing and improving public infrastructure and facilities, including projects that are grant-funded. He advises on major construction and renovation projects involving tens of millions of dollars in public investment, and works with agencies to implement alternative options, such as design-build. Mike's goal is to help clients deliver projects on-time and on-budget. To meet this challenge, he works with public agencies to both prevent and resolve legal disputes that arise during construction, aiding clients in avoiding claims and negotiating settlements.

As a law student at the UC College of the Law, San Francisco (formerly Hastings), Mike provided legal counsel to local community groups as part of the Community Economic Development Clinic. From this experience, he developed an understanding and passion for the important role that local government plays in serving in communities and bringing about positive change. He is grateful that he now has the opportunity to counsel the civic leaders who provide these services.
